One Point Solutions Receives International Recognition from IBM Michigan IT firm is recognized for excellence in delivering business value and cutting-edge BI and database solutions across North America.

Novi, Michigan, October 26, 2008 – For the third straight year, One Point Solutions, a leading business intelligence solutions provider and IBM database specialist, was named as a finalist for IBM's 2008 Distinguished Achievement Award for Information Management Business Partners. The company is one of only three partners out of 35,000 in North America to receive this honor, which is awarded because of its solid year-to-year growth and its focus on IBM data-related software/services over the past 11 years. One Point provides turnkey up-and-running solutions from IBM, DB2 UDB, Informix, Cognos, and IBM Infosphere Warehouse.

The award recognizes IBM business partners that promote IBM's Information Management position in the marketplace and are considered rising stars among their peers. Criteria include revenue attainment, creation of new customers, innovation in business intelligence and database technology, ability to open new regional markets, and maintaining an excellent stature in IBM's business partner community. In receiving this award, One Point has surpassed many larger competitors in the field.

For four of the past five years, IBM has recognized One Point's excellence as a business partner. In 2004, the company was selected from over 35,000 businesses for IBM's worldwide award for data management partners, and in 2006, 2007 and 2008 One Point was named as a North American finalist.

Ron Flannery, president and founder of One Point, attributes the company's continued success to a strong commitment to serve as "one point of contact" for its clients. "We have an intense focus on being a valued partner for small- and medium-sized businesses seeking one point of contact for database and reporting solutions. These types of businesses can't afford a large staff or dealing with multiple vendors," said Flannery. "Clients and business partners alike, including IBM, recognize One Point's ability to deliver effective information management services and IBM data product licensing."
